Ioannis Vlahavas is a professor at the School of Informatics at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. He received his Ph.D. degree in Logic Programming Systems from the same University in 1988. He has been a visiting scholar at the Department of CS at Purdue University and in 2017 elected EurAI Fellow from the European Association for Artificial Intelligence. He specializes in knowledge based and AI (machine learning) systems and he has published over 350 papers and book chapters, and co-authored 9 books in these areas. Google scholar gives a number of 15200 citations and an h-index of 54. He teaches AI, Machine learning, and DSS. He has been involved in more than 35 research and development projects, leading most of them. He has successfully supervised 15 PhD students. He was the chairman of the 2nd Hellenic Conference on AI, the host of the 2nd International Summer School on AI Planning, Program Chair, 2nd ADBIS Workshop on Data Mining and Knowledge Discovery, Workshop co-chair, 19th International Conference on Automated Planning and Scheduling, ICAPS09, Co-Chair of the 5th IFIP International Conference on Artificial Intelligence Applications and Innovations (AIAI'2009), Co-Chair of the 17th Panhellenic Conference on Informatics (PCI 2013), General Co-Chair of the 9th Hellenic Conference on AI 2016, etc. He was Chairman of the Dept. of Informatics at the Aristotle Univ. of Thessaloniki, Greece (2013-2017) and Member of the steering committee and Dean of the School of Science and Technology of the International Hellenic University (2007-2016). He is leading the Intelligent Systems Lab.

(more information at http://intelligence.csd.auth.gr/people/vlahavas/)